ABOUT PRB PRODUCTIONS

Established in 1989, PRB Productions is dedicated to publishing practical performing editions of early and contemporary music for instruments and voices. PRB initially focused on a large selection of previously unpublished original works for viol consort, but later expanded to include new compositions for early and modern instruments, as well as vocal music. PRB's current list of more than 300 titles now spans five centuries of chamber music, featuring a diverse repertoire that ranges from Renaissance bicinia to Baroque and early Classical works and beyond, to new music for recorders, keyboard, cello, and even tuba! PRB also provides customized music engraving services upon request, including transposition of parts into keys or clefs specified by our clients.

A primary objective of PRB is to produce editions that are both visually pleasing and easily readable. Parts are designed to eliminate awkward page turns and cues are added where appropriate. Most of the editions of early music include a preface with biographical information about the composer, textual commentaries, tables of variants, and a list of source materials. Original works of new music may include a descriptive statement, commentary and performance suggestions provided by the composer.

PRB is especially pleased to present first modern editions of G.P. Telemann's Fortsetzung des Harmonischen Gottesdienstes (I73I-32) (BO03A-G), a seven-volume series of 72 cantatas for solo voice, two instruments and basso continuo, and Chorale Cantatas "for Danzig" (c. 1754) (BO2I-24); two works by Johann Christian Bach (c. 1757-60), Domine ad adjuvandum, for soprano solo, SATB soloists or chorus, and orchestra (CLO03), and Laudate pueri, for soprano solo and orchestra (CLO04); Carel Hacquart's Harmonia Parnassia Sonatarum (c. 1686), sonatas for violins, viola or tenor viol, bass viol and continuo (BO34 and BO35); Marco da Gagliano's 1608 opera, La Dafne (BO47); Daniel Purcell's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day 1698 (BO48); and William Lawes' Harp Consorts (VCO62). Other significant publications include the first complete critical modern edition of Priscilla Bunbury's Virginal Book (EKO03) and a recently discovered chorus for SATB voices and orchestra, 'Oh portento! Oh stupor!' by J.C. Bach (CLO16). We are also pleased to introduce Belinda Reynolds' Custom Made Music series, compositions of new music focusing on players in the early to intermediate years of their studies.

We have included in this catalogue references to CD recordings featuring selections that appear in our editions. These references are included solely for informational purposes and should not be interpreted to imply PRB's support or endorsement of any particular recording company or artist.

ABOUT THIS CATALOGUE

This catalogue is divided into the following categories: Educational Series, Baroque and Classical Series, Viol Consorts, and Contemporary Music. The Contemporary Music category is further subdivided into Contemporary Viol Music, Contemporary Recorder Music, Contemporary Keyboard and Instrumental Music, and Contemporary Vocal Music. Some items may be listed in more than one category. All editions consist of score and parts, unless otherwise noted. New items are marked with an asterisk (*). Price increases are noted with a dagger (†). A list of music by number of parts follows at the end of the main catalogue.

The staff at PRB are always happy to answer any questions you may have about our editions or music engraving services. We also welcome suggestions and proposals for new publications.
